Water committee recommends 'water rules' to meet 30% cutback

Preparations for dealing with water shortages in the months to come were at the core of a special workshop held by the Helix Water District Board on Monday.

Faced with an expected call for 30 percent conservation by the Metropolitan Water District, the Board worked on methodology for enforcing such a cutback as well as a customer education program which would prepare the public for the anticipated cut.

HWD Community Relations Director Shirley Massie outlined for the Board a proposed ordinance developed by a joint East County water districts' committee. The committee which includes the Helix, Otay, Padre Dam, Sweetwater and Lakeside water districts, has recommended a simplified "water rules" ordinance with the following stipulations:

1. Water shall not be allowed to leave a customer's property by drainage onto adjacent properties or public or private roadways or streets, due to excessive irrigation and/or neglect.

2. Customers shall repair all water leaks.

3. Water shall not be used to wash down sidewalks, driveways, parking areas, tennis courts, patios or other paved areas, except to alleviate immediate safety or sanitation hazards.

4. Lawn watering or irrigation other than by hand or by drip methods is prohibited except between the hours of 4 p.m and 9 a.m.

5. The use of a hand-held hose without an automatic shut-off device is prohibited.

6. Restaurants shall not serve water to their customers except when specifically requested.

Variously referred to by Board members as "Thou shalt never do's" or, "water ethics," the ordinance is a simplification of an earlier effort. Reporting on the views of the joint committee, Massie noted that many felt that too many technical specifics would tend to confuse, rather than enlighten, the customers. It was felt that it would be more productive to "leave it to the individual " to decide how to meet the reduction goal.

In outlining a plan for enforcement of the anticipated 30 percent cutback, Board members determined to use the calendar year of 1989 as the base, thus expecting customers to cut 30 percent from their 1989 norm.

Under the recommended plan, customers would be informed in advance of their individual household targets, based on 1989 usage. Should customers exceed their target in any of their bimonthly charge periods, a surcharge of $1.50 to $2.10 for each hundred cubic feet (748 gallons) of usage would be added.

Should a customer continue to overuse for an extended period, he could be visited by HWD staff and encouraged to cut usage. In extreme cases, the District can place a restriction on the abuser's water meter.

Should a customer be surcharged in any one period, he can receive a refund if he is below target in any of the three following charge periods.

Although the 30 percent reduction rate is expected to go into effect no later than March 1, there will be no retroactive surcharging, with the new rate system going into effect in mid-April after an extensive customer education program by the District.

Construction projects will be similarly metered but should the HWD reduction target reach 50 percent in the summer, their meters would be turned off.

Council to hear plan for new park in northeastern corner of Lemon Grove

A new park may be in the works for the residents in the northeast corner of Lemon Grove. Tuesday, February 19th, the Lemon Grove City Council will hold a Public Hearing at 7:30 p.m. to amend the General Plan of the City to delete the "park" designation of the property in the 1500 block of Osage Drive (known as Eppick Park) and apply a "park" designation to a parcel of land on the south side of the 8100 block of Lemon Grove Way (near St. John of the Cross).

The original park site, in the City's southeastern corner, had never been developed as a park because the City Council and Planning Commission felt that it would not serve the residents of Lemon Grove, but the residents of Spring Valley. However, because the land was acquired by the County under the State Beach, Park, Recreational and Historical Facilities Bond Act of 1974, it could not be developed for any other purpose except a park.

In further discussions about parks in Lemon Grove, the Council determined that there was a need for a park or other recreational facility in the City's northeast corner. "Residents north of Broadway and east of Grove have no park," said Community Development Director Jim Butler. "They are basically cut-off from accessing the other parks in the City by Broadway."

As a result, the City has entered into negotiations with the Larry Boerner, owner of the block of property on Lemon Grove Way, to swap his acre of land with the three acres the City owns on Osage Drive.

"They are of equivalent value because there is three times the development density on the Lemon Grove Way property. The land on Lemon Grove Way is being under-utilized and the owner feels that the Osage Drive property would provide a better market for single family dwellings," said Butler.

The property swap will require special legislation from the State of California and State assembly Member Pete Chacon and State Senator Waddie Deddah have been asked to act as co-authors of urgency legislation to transfer title of the Osage Drive property for private use.

Butler said in an analysis of the project for the Planning Commission, "The City Council believes that the proposed land exchange represents an extraordinary opportunity to provide new parkland for a neighborhood which does not have satisfactory access to City parks."

He also said that because the City of Lemon Grove is 90 percent developed, this may be one of the last parks developed in Lemon Grove.

Anyone wishing to speak to the City Council about the proposed park may do so Tuesday.

Personal comments of Councilman Bob Burns

Pot holes among us

So the guy says, "Why don't you write about pot holes? They are always around us somewhere." And, you know, he is right ...

When the community of Lemon Grove became a city in 1977, it was made official on July 1. This was the first day of the new fiscal year and meant that we were on our own, so to speak. The reason that this day was chosen was that as a part of the County, the law said that a newly-formed city would enjoy the continuing benefits of County services for the "rest of the fiscal year." This was to give time for the new government to accumulate funds and hire staff to run itself. So, for 364 days, we continued all regular services as before, and collected revenues to do it ourselves. It was kind of like that first push, and the training wheels that get a youngster started on his first bike ride. Not the least of these services was the street repair that we were getting from the County Road Department, or more truthfully, seldom getting.

Since then, we have grown. Aside from all of the other staff, we now have a City engineer and a public works crew of loosely 15 people, counting the part-timers. Filling pot holes is only a part of their job. They also stripe and paint legends on the streets, trim trees in the right of way, do all of the parkland maintenance, put up and repair street signs, and clean up graffiti. The crew is also embellished with prisoners who would rather work in the out-of-doors than languish in jail.

Since incorporation, the price of asphalt has more than doubled. We do have a vehicle known as a "patch truck" which heats, mixes and is a total tool for laying hot asphalt patches in the street. When the hole is properly prepared, this method provides the finest street repair possible and the patches are the closest to being permanent that there is. Cold patching and hand tamping just cannot compare. The first rain loosens the patch and soon it becomes again a place where your car goes bump in the right of way. The reason that we sometimes see potholes that seem to be forgotten or neglected is that it is most economical to purchase asphalt in a truck-load lot. one load will fill 8 to 10 potholes, and the most prudent plan is to line up a similar number before sending the patch truck out. So, if the hole on your street is not fixed right away, it is because the itinerary has not been completed for the crew.

There are areas in our city that would appear to be city streets, but in actuality, are private property. The public works department cannot do any work on private property except in special circumstances, without being in jeopardy, or spending public funs improperly. The parking areas on Broadway, between Lemon Grove Avenue and Grove Street are not city-owned streets, and thus cannot be resurfaced or repaired.

The full street resurfacing and actual overlays are done by contracts with private contractors because we do not have facilities to do that level of work. Our city engineer, Mr. Les Ruh, keeps in close touch with the supervisors of such jobs to see that they are done right. Les is a part of the team that has walked every foot of our city streets to formulate a plan. Each section of each street has been graded as to its condition, and a determination made as to just what it will need and when. One may just need a sand and seal, while another may be good for a specified time before needing anything.

Les tells me that the entire city has been gone through at least three times in this rotation process. Our 3.75 square miles of streets are getting excellent surveillance and good preventative maintenance.

If you have a pot hole. please call the City Hall and give its location to the public works department. Then drive around it patiently. It will be taken care of, never fear ...

The peril of SB 2557

There is a very real peril facing our little city along with the many other municipalities in California.

It is called SB 2557.

This is a Senate Bill that will attempt to solve the budget problems of the State by simply taking away monies that belong to the cities. This is to be done in a process of adding charges for services heretofore considered the rightfully granted services that cities are entitled to. The collection of property taxes within an area on holdings within that jurisdiction, has always been returned to same. SB 2557 would now make an exorbitant charge for the administration of such collection. Also, there is proposed a "booking charge" for all arrests and billing for cost of keeping in custody or such, prisoners until released or moved to another "housing unit" as prescribed by the court. The charges for these two items have not been specifically determined, but it will be high.

The cities of California have banded together to march under a banner of cause that is called, "Operation Budget Freedom." the hue and cry is, "Get off our backs," and it simply says, "Do not solve your budgetary problems by taking away funds that are rightfully ours, and shifting the burden off onto our already strained budget. We are calling on the State to clean up their own act, and not to penalize us who are being fiscally responsible.

In the city of Lemon Grove, the impacts of such a measure could well cause us to eliminate all of the Recreation Department, all of the Public Works department, and about half of City Halls' staff. We are not a large city with a humungous budget to serve our 22,000 people. The proposed cuts in our revenues can inflict serious wounds in the body of our government.

Senator Dan Boatright has come up with a counter measure that will repeal SB 2557. He proposes to eliminate the booking and property tax aspects of the bill. In return, he proposes that a one-year extension of the vehicle licensing fee be enacted to replace the lost (or needed) funding. Most importantly, the effort is to make Sacramento responsible for its own problems and not to ameliorate them by siphoning off the revenues of the cities who are trying desperately to care for their own. If anyone in Lemon Grove has influence in our state capital, it is imperative that they lobby for Senator Boatright's bill. A call to your representative might make the difference.

There are some other proposals that make some sense. Elimination of the sales tax exemption on candy and other articles could do the trick without a lot of pain. But, it seems that the old idea that whenever monies are collected by the State, as many are and subsequently returned proportionately to the jurisdictions, that the identity is lost. It has been said by an Assemblyman: "This is our money. It is not yours once it arrives in Sacramento." This is just mind-boggling. They must go with the old adage that "possession is nine points of the law," and think that if we are foolish enough to send it up there, then we do not deserve to have it returned.

Operation Budget Freedom needs everyone's help. It is imperative that we all do what we can to push SB 169 which will undo the harm of SB 2557 Governor Wilson has inherited a big job and a very big deficit that must be somehow eliminated. Responsibliity is something that one takes for thier own actions and should not be foisted off onto others who have not caused the problem.

Call your legislator today -- support SB 169

Sports Commentary

Great memories in the making

It's under way. All the fun and games of preliminary partying are over; the main event is at hand.

A field of the world's greatest golfers unlimbered their shafts and loosened their waddle this morning in preparation for their four-day assault against themselves, each other, the weather (the possibilities of rain, wind or fog) and even lower back muscle protestations in the 1991 Shearson Lehman Brothers (San Diego) Open Golf Tournament.

And, as the event unfolds, those unfortunate folks who do not get out to Torrey to view all, or part of the 72 holes of contention, will, in future years, lie about it and claim they were indeed in attendance.

Great human interest stories will highlight the retelling of individual tales of this year's Torrey tourney. Why, even history may very well be in the making.

The contending field is a cross-section of great golfers and golfing greats. It's a matter of survival. Both Torrey courses are laid out over a patchwork of ravines and arroyos deep enough in which to lose the 7th Calvary.

Torrey Pines North, which gets the once-over before the cut is made for the final two rounds, plays to 6,659 yards. It's a mix of mild par 3s, long par 4s and very makeable par 5s.

Torrey Pines South is a course of a different hue. Color this one Tough. Keeping the ball in play is the key. Golfers face narrow fairways, tough rough, and vast, almost prehistoric wilderness on three sides and the Pacific Ocean to the west.

The challenges of the Torrey courses are well-known to local players and PGA regulars. And they generally like the test.

Tom Watson is trying for his third Torrey win. Fred Couples loves the length (they don't call him "Boom-Boom" for nothing).

Defending champ Dan Forsman, Mark O'Meara, Billy Mayfair, Ben Crenshaw, Dave Frost, Tim Simpson, Joey Sindelar, Tommy Armour III and Hal Sutton, among others, are expected to flood the leader boards.

Corey Pavin (an Eric Show look-alike) who chipped in from 40 feet to win last week's Bob Hope marathon in sudden death, is taking dead-aim at logging a back-to-back double.

San Diego's Scott Simpson (Madison High), Craig Stadler (La Jolla High) and amateur Phil Mickelson (University High) have homegrown galleries of friends and neighbors to cheer them on.

Simpson, a former U.S. Open winner, has been working on his driving. That's bad news for his opponents. Even when he played a little short, he has always been tough on tough courses.

Stadler says he's fresh and ready. A former Master's winner, he "feels" good things are going to come his way this year. And it could start today.

Phil Mickelson brings magic to the sportin' world. He's almost too good to be true. A 20-year-old junior at the University of Arizona, he is the current U.S. Amateur Champion and a two-time NCAA champ. He won the 1991 PGA season-opening tournament at Tucson to forge a new PGA category, "Tournament Winner, amateur."

In years to come, millions of golf fans will swear they saw Phil play as an amateur. Most of them will be fibbing. But, if you visit Torrey Pines this weekend, you won't have to fib.

From Where I Sit A real princess

By Frank Andrews

Our last camp-out at San Felipe was a near disaster. The once-peaceful little village was now swarming with rowdy American students, some of whom were drunk and disorderly. Our secluded hide-away was now a virtual den of iniquity, not a place to bring my family.

One evening, we walked north on the sandy beach until we were far away from the maddening crowd. We found a lady, dressed in a sarong sitting by a campfire in front of her quaint little cabin. We had to meet this most interesting looking "Woman by the Sea."

I introduced my gang to this most gracious lady with the usual, "How do you do's?" Then she introduced herself, "My name is Sinaloa and I was born on an American Samoan island in the South Pacific. The king of American Samoa is my brother, so, I am Princess Sinaloa." We were all thrilled to meet a real princess. We had to know more I pleaded hungrily, "Please tell us more about your homeland and how you got to Mexico."

She shared a portion of her past with us and very proudly revealed, "I fell in love and married an American naval admiral while he was stationed on my Samoan island. We traveled extensively with the Navy, and when his retirement time came, we settled on Coronado Island.

"Then, after a few years of the high society American life, I just had to get back to a lifestyle more like the one I had left back in the Pacific. So we found the nearest thing to it, the Baja Peninsula," she added."We found a remote little village called Puertecitos and loved it so much that we had a cabin built. My husband and I would go down there quite often until he passed away just recently. I sold our place in Puertecitos because it was too far to go now that I'm alone. I just had this San Felipe cabin built and I plan to stay here all the time," the princess explained.

Besides sharing some of her life with us and many interesting stories, this fine lady introduced us to Puertecitos, which would be our favorite hide-away for the next 17 years. We will never forget thecharming Sinaloa, a real princess in every respect.

Welcome New Members

Dr. Bob & Jackie Burns (Associates)

Dr. Bob recently retired as veterinarian of Lemon Grove Vet. Hospital. He remains active in our City politics as Councilman Burns. Dr. Bob is also a writer for the Lemon Grove Review under the title of B-Words. You might be familiar with his past columns and he has many more, interesting things to write about. His articles are filled with good old-fashioned home-town humor. Another reason for subscribing to and supporting our local newspaper.

Jackie is the light behind his glow. Like you have often heard, "Behind every good man is a good (looking) woman." Dr. Bob has been working harder after his retirement then he ever did before. He has recently brought in the mail, taken out the trash, and several other important Honey-dos. I understand the garage might be the next item! Just kidding Bob, Just kidding...We are happy to have both of you as new Chamber associate members.

Around the City

What's Happening? - Who, When, Where, & How . . .

The February 27th Sundowner, 5:30 - 7:30 p.m., will be held at Premier Mortgage Corp. at 7885 Broadway. Bring a friend and don't forget a business card and a dollar for the Fish Bowl.

The Miss Lemon Grove Committee is working hard to get everything put together for the pageant, to be held Saturday, March 9th. The time will be 7:00 p.m. at the Lemon Grove Middle School located on School Lane. We hope everyone can be seated this year, but just to be sure I would suggest you get there as early as possible. If you know of any young ladies fitting the requirements please have them get in touch with the Chamber office at 469-9621 or Color Me Beautiful, by Erica at 463-3136.

Pete Smith, one of our board of director members and F.E.B./Y.M.A.T.(W.A.C.), (Former Eligible Bachelor/Young Man About Town (With A Camera), is back in town! Pete married his high school sweetheart Cherie, then moved to Virginia Beach. It didn't take them long to miss the good old sunshine, especially since Pete feels he must share his legs with the world by always wearing short pants. It get COLD back in those hills! Cherie has taken a nursing position as Head Honcho in Charge at Balboa Hospital and Pete will be kept busy, customizing his house for the three new women in his life; his wife and two daughters. Pete was active in the Historical Society, and is responsible for having "squeezed" more life out of the Mobile Lemon.

Wally Dorman, of Dorman and Dorman Law offices, is recuperating from a hip joint replacement. We are in the bionics age I guess. With the right doctors almost anything is possible. We hope you are kicking up your heels soon, and back to running the legs off everyone in your family. Makes us wonder, Lita, does he make a patient patient?

Take care!

January Sundowner

The January Sundowner at Imperial Saving & Loan was very enjoyable. The Manager, Clara Araiza-Varela and her crew of Merry Workers, put forth a pleasant evening. Clara and the gals are lots of fun, and between them and your Chamber staff we pulled a fast one on our local barber and friend Bill Ware, owner and Chief-Resident of the Tonsorial Parlor.

Last month you were told about the Christmas tree competition between Bill the barber and myself. Well, as time has it, Bill was telling a group at the Imperial Savings Sundowner about the many customers he showed the pictures to and that they had picked his tree as the best, only to become the loser when the trees were judged by the Fire Dept. and Bernadine's Hair World. We had agreed upon their ability to be our judges. None of the judges knew beforehand which tree belonged to whom. I am happy to say I was the winner and was taken to lunch, by Bill, instead of receiving 10 pounds of nuts, which was the original bet.

Well, as Bill was telling the story, Clara asked to see the tree pictures so everyone could judge them again at the Sundowner. "Hey! That's OK with me," we both exclaimed. Did we want to make it a little interesting and take the winner to dinner again? "Sure!" So Bill left the bank to get the pictures out of his shop, while I told everyone which tree was mine. Everyone agreed to select it. Bill returned with the pics and everyone was given a piece of paper to write either number 1 or 2, indicating their choice of tree. Clara let Bill count the returns, only to discover everyone in the bank had chosen my tree as the winner! Bill couldn't believe it. He had lost again!!!

If you are interested in sponsoring a Sundowner for either of the following months please contact the Chamber office as soon as possible. We have an opening for July, August, September and November.

First come first served.

Newsletter Correction

Boy wouldn't it be great if no mistooks were made? The article last month on Health Insurance? Well, it didn't get off the ground. I should have waited longer before putting it in print. The insurance writers turned it down at the last minute. I have called the insurance carrier, and agent, and they should get back to me.

If you are considering a change in your insurance and you were one of those interested in the plan in the last newsletter please give me a call. I am sorry for the confusion.

The American Flag

The Chamber has had inquiries about the flags that appear on the Broadway median. It might be good if everyone knew who is responsible for the flags and who pays the expenses each time. The Soroptimist International of Lemon Grove, a club for women, is totally responsible. The Soroptimist's are very active in many areas and this is one of their ongoing efforts to benefit our community. The flags are placed in position every Friday and on all holidays.

For many years the flag has shown our patriotism. Now with loved ones in the Mideast, it's even more inportant to show our support for our service men and women.

If you are interested in having the flags fly longer hours and would like to make a donation to cover the extra expense, contact the Soroptimist's. They also would welcome another group to help share in placing the flags. If you need more information you can contact one of their members at 466-0503.

Because of the conflict in the Mideast, many people are looking for flags to fly over their homes or in front of their businesses. Did you know you can call Congressmen Cunningham and request to purchase a flag that has been flown over the U.S. Capitol? Flown in honor of your own name? The cost of the flag is very reasonable considering not only the size of the flag and type of material used, but also it will be flown because you personally requested it. We ordered a 4 x 6 foot nylon for $9.79!

It would make a good gift for you or someone special. At this time it takes approximately 4 weeks to get your flag.

A Death in the Neighborhood

by Joseph Walker

There was a death in the neighborhood last week.

I never met the young man who was the first from our area to lose his life during Operation Desert Storm. But somehow, it feels as if I knew him.

Dion was one of those all-American boys that you meet every now and then.

Popular and well-liked, he was involved in a lot of things without dominating any of them. He was a good student, but he wasn't exactly what you'd call a scholar. He was a good athlete, but he wasn't a superstar. He participated in drama and music, but always in supporting roles, never in the spotlight.

"Friendly" is one adjective I've heard a lot lately as people have remembered Dion. So is "kind." And "happy." And "fun."

"He had one of those smiles that just sort of lit up the room and made you feel warm inside," one of his close friends told me. No one was surprised when he joined the Marines right out of high school. His father was an ex-Marine, and everyone knew things like loyalty, commitment and service to country were family traditions. They didn't have to teach him a thing about the Marines" heritage of Semper Fi ("Always Faithful"). He had already lived it. All his life.

"I really wanted him to go to the Naval Academy," his proud father said without a trace of regret in his voice. "But he told me, "Oh, I don't think I could handle four more years of school right now." He wanted to get out there and get on with his life."

And now that life is over, snuffed out by what military officials call "friendly fire."

"Dion knew the risks and he accepted them," his father said. "He really believed in what we were doing over there, and he was proud to serve. If he had it to do all over again, even knowing the consequences, I don't think he'd do anything different."

The harshest reality of war is that such young people are lost on both sides of the conflict, with each casualty depriving mankind of a full measure of untapped potential.

There is no such thing as "light" casualties. Even one dead soldier represents the ultimate sacrifice, and the ultimate anguish for one family and group of friends.

It's like a bomb is dropped thousands of miles away, and it explodes over here in our own neighborhoods.

But I don't think we honor Dion and his fallen comrades in arms by bemoaning the futility of war or its drain on our human and natural resources. Instead, we should celebrate the energy and enthusiasm of their commitment to honor, duty and country.

Whether or not you agree with our national policy in the Persian Gulf, you have to respect people like Dion who are willing to risk everything for a cause they believe in.

Near the end of the film, "The Wind and the Lion," a nomadic desert character played by Sean Connery is being reminded of the heavy losses his people have sustained in their battle to retain their land and their lifestyle. He speaks of it philosophically, as if the toll being exacted isn't really burdensome.

"But you've lost everything," a colleague reminds him emphatically as they ride off into the sunset. "Everything!"

"Ah, yes," Connery's character concludes, "But isn't it wonderful to have something that is worth losing everything for?"

That's the way Dion saw it. And that's the way many of his friends and family see it. Despite the sorrow that they feel at his death, there is peace and comfort in knowing that he gave his life for something he truly believed in -- something greater than narrow self-interest and more important than life itself.

That's what makes Dion a hero to me. It's not the fact that he died, but that he lived as he believed - even at the cost of comfort, convenience and, eventually, his own life. I find that kind of principled integrity heroic, issues notwithstanding. As Mark Antony said of his friend, the noble Brutus:

"His life was gentle, and the elements so mix'd in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'this was a man!' "

(Joseph Walker is a bishop in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints).

A Tribute to Al Lynn

When I prepared to open my business in Lemon Grove a year ago, I set out to bet my permit for my construction work.

To my chagrin, I had to deal with who I thought to be one of the strictest and sternest men I had ever met. His name was Al Lynn.

He scolded me often as I progressed along with my buildout, but he always backed off just enough to let me know he wasn't such a bad guy.

Finally, I was finished, but I frequently talked to Al later on as he spent a lot of his free time at the gun shop next to my office. Every time he passed my office, he would wave if he saw me inside, and occasionally stop in to see how things were going.

He would also proceed to tell me how people were always trying to put something over on him as a building inspector, but he took great pride in knowing that he had seen it all before, and could not be duped.

He was a proud man who at times appeared tough, but he was really a kindhearted person who put on an act. I remember his fatherly advice of telling me to hang in there for the long haul, and that I would make it here in Lemon Grove. That was the true kind side of Al Lynn.

Monday, February 4, in the afternoon, he did another inspection at my office to check on some fire damage repair. He proceeded to read the riot act to the builder and cut him no slack at all. I followed Al outside and he looked at me and said, "This won't effect you. Keep your business open, but they shouldn't have messed with me." That was Al Lynn.

Later that evening, Al Lynn moved on to a better place and Lemon Grove will never be the same. I am going to miss him!

ECPAC 'World of Music' series opens with the Lark String Quartet

The Lark String Quartet, an ensemble of four outstanding young women musicians, opens the spring World of Music series at the East County Performing Arts Center on February 18 and 19.

The series is co-sponsored by the Grossmont-Cuyamaca Community College District and San Diego State University. The event includes a 7 p.m. lecture/demonstration and a concert beginning at 8:30.

In 1987, "Musical America" chose the Lark Quartet as one of its "Young Artists to Watch." In 1990, the quartet fulfilled that promise, by capturing the Naumburg Foundation Chamber Music Award, Its members include Eve Gruesser, violin; Robin Mayforth, violin; Anna Kruger, viola; and Astrid Schween, cello.

The quartet has been awarded top prizes in Munich's Karl Klingler International String Quartet Competition as well as the Banff International String Quartest Competition. Recently, the Lark Quartet was appointed to the faculty of San Diego State University as visiting professors.

League of Women Voters ask State Senate Elections and Reapportionment Committee for public input on redistricting

"Redistricting must be done in the open, with opportunity for public scrutiny of plans and for meaningful public input before plans are voted on."

This was the message emphasized by the League of Women Voters in their testimony before the California State Senate Elections and Reapportionment Committee in San Diego on February 8.

Alice McCauley spoke on behalf of the four leagues in San Diego County, calling for the Senate to publicize their proposed plan with maps and substantiating documentation, 14 days before voting on it. She called attention to New York City's promise of public access to their redistricting date base.

McCauley also said that in addition to the Constitutional and federal statutory requirements of equal populations and the Voting Rights Act of the California Constitution requires that "cites and counties must be kept whole except where meeting the Voting Rights Act and equal population requirements does not make it possible."

The Senate and Assembly just set new boundaries for their own election districts and for Congressional and Board of Equalization districts later this year. These new boundaries will be based on the detailed 1990 census date which will become available April 1.
